

Robert Rich, M.D.,
Executive Associate Dean of Research,
Emory University School of Medicine,
Atlanta, GA

Dr. Rich is Executive Associate Dean and Professor of Medicine and Microbiology and Immunology at Emory University School of Medicine. He received his M.D. from the University of Kansas and completed an internship and residency in internal medicine at the University of Washington. He had subspecialty training in Allergy and Immunology and postdoctoral fellowships at NIH and Harvard Medical School. In 1973, Rich joined the faculty of Baylor College of Medicine as Assistant Professor of Microbiology and Immunology and Medicine. In 1978, he was promoted to Professor and in 1995 was named Distinguished Service Professor. He was Investigator of the Howard Hughes Medical Institute from 1977 to 1991. From 1990 to 1998, he also served as Vice President and Dean of Research at Baylor. Appointments to editorial boards have included The Journal of Immunology, The Journal of Experimental Medicine, The Journal of Infectious Diseases, The Journal of Clinical Immunology and Clinical and Experimental Immunology. He is editor-in-chief of a comprehensive textbook Clinical Immunology. Dr. Rich is also past President of the Clinical Immunology Society and past Chair of the Professional Education Council of the American Academy of Allergy, Sections and on the Boards and Directors of the American Board of Allergy and Immunology (also Chairman) and the American Board of Internal Medicine. He is currently President-Elect of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology. In 2001 he will also become Vice President of the American Academy of Allergy Asthma and Immunology.